

The idea came from President Lyndon B. Johnson who advocated for rural electrification and youth development. In 1957, when he was still a U.S. Senator, Johnson suggested “sending youngsters to the nation’s capital where they can actually see what the flag stands for and represents.”

This notion evolved into a nationwide effort to send youth on an organized, fun and educational trip in the 1960s. Now, some 60 years later, electric cooperatives from across the country send over 1,500 youth to the nation’s capital every summer.

About my trip...

"Youth Tour was an unforgettable experience that has changed my life. I met incredible people and had an incredible time."

"Youth Tour is a fabulous opportunity and a once in a lifetime experience. I cannot express how thankful I am for this chance to discover so much about our nation's capitol."

"This Youth Tour opened big doors for small town kids."

"Because of the generosity of my co-op, I was able to see my country in a new light with people I normally never would have met. I am proud for what my co-op stands for and proud to be an American."

"I explored my interests, toured the national capitol and met some of the most interesting students throughout the country."

"It can be tough to be with a group of kids you've never met before, but life begins when you step outside your comfort zone and where else is better to start your life than this beautiful nation's capitol ... and it was free!"

"Amazing sights, brilliant people and hands-on history. What could be better? Thank you for everything!"
